For more than 80 years, Landsec has been investing in the City of London, shaping the place and experiences that make it one of the world's leading business districts.

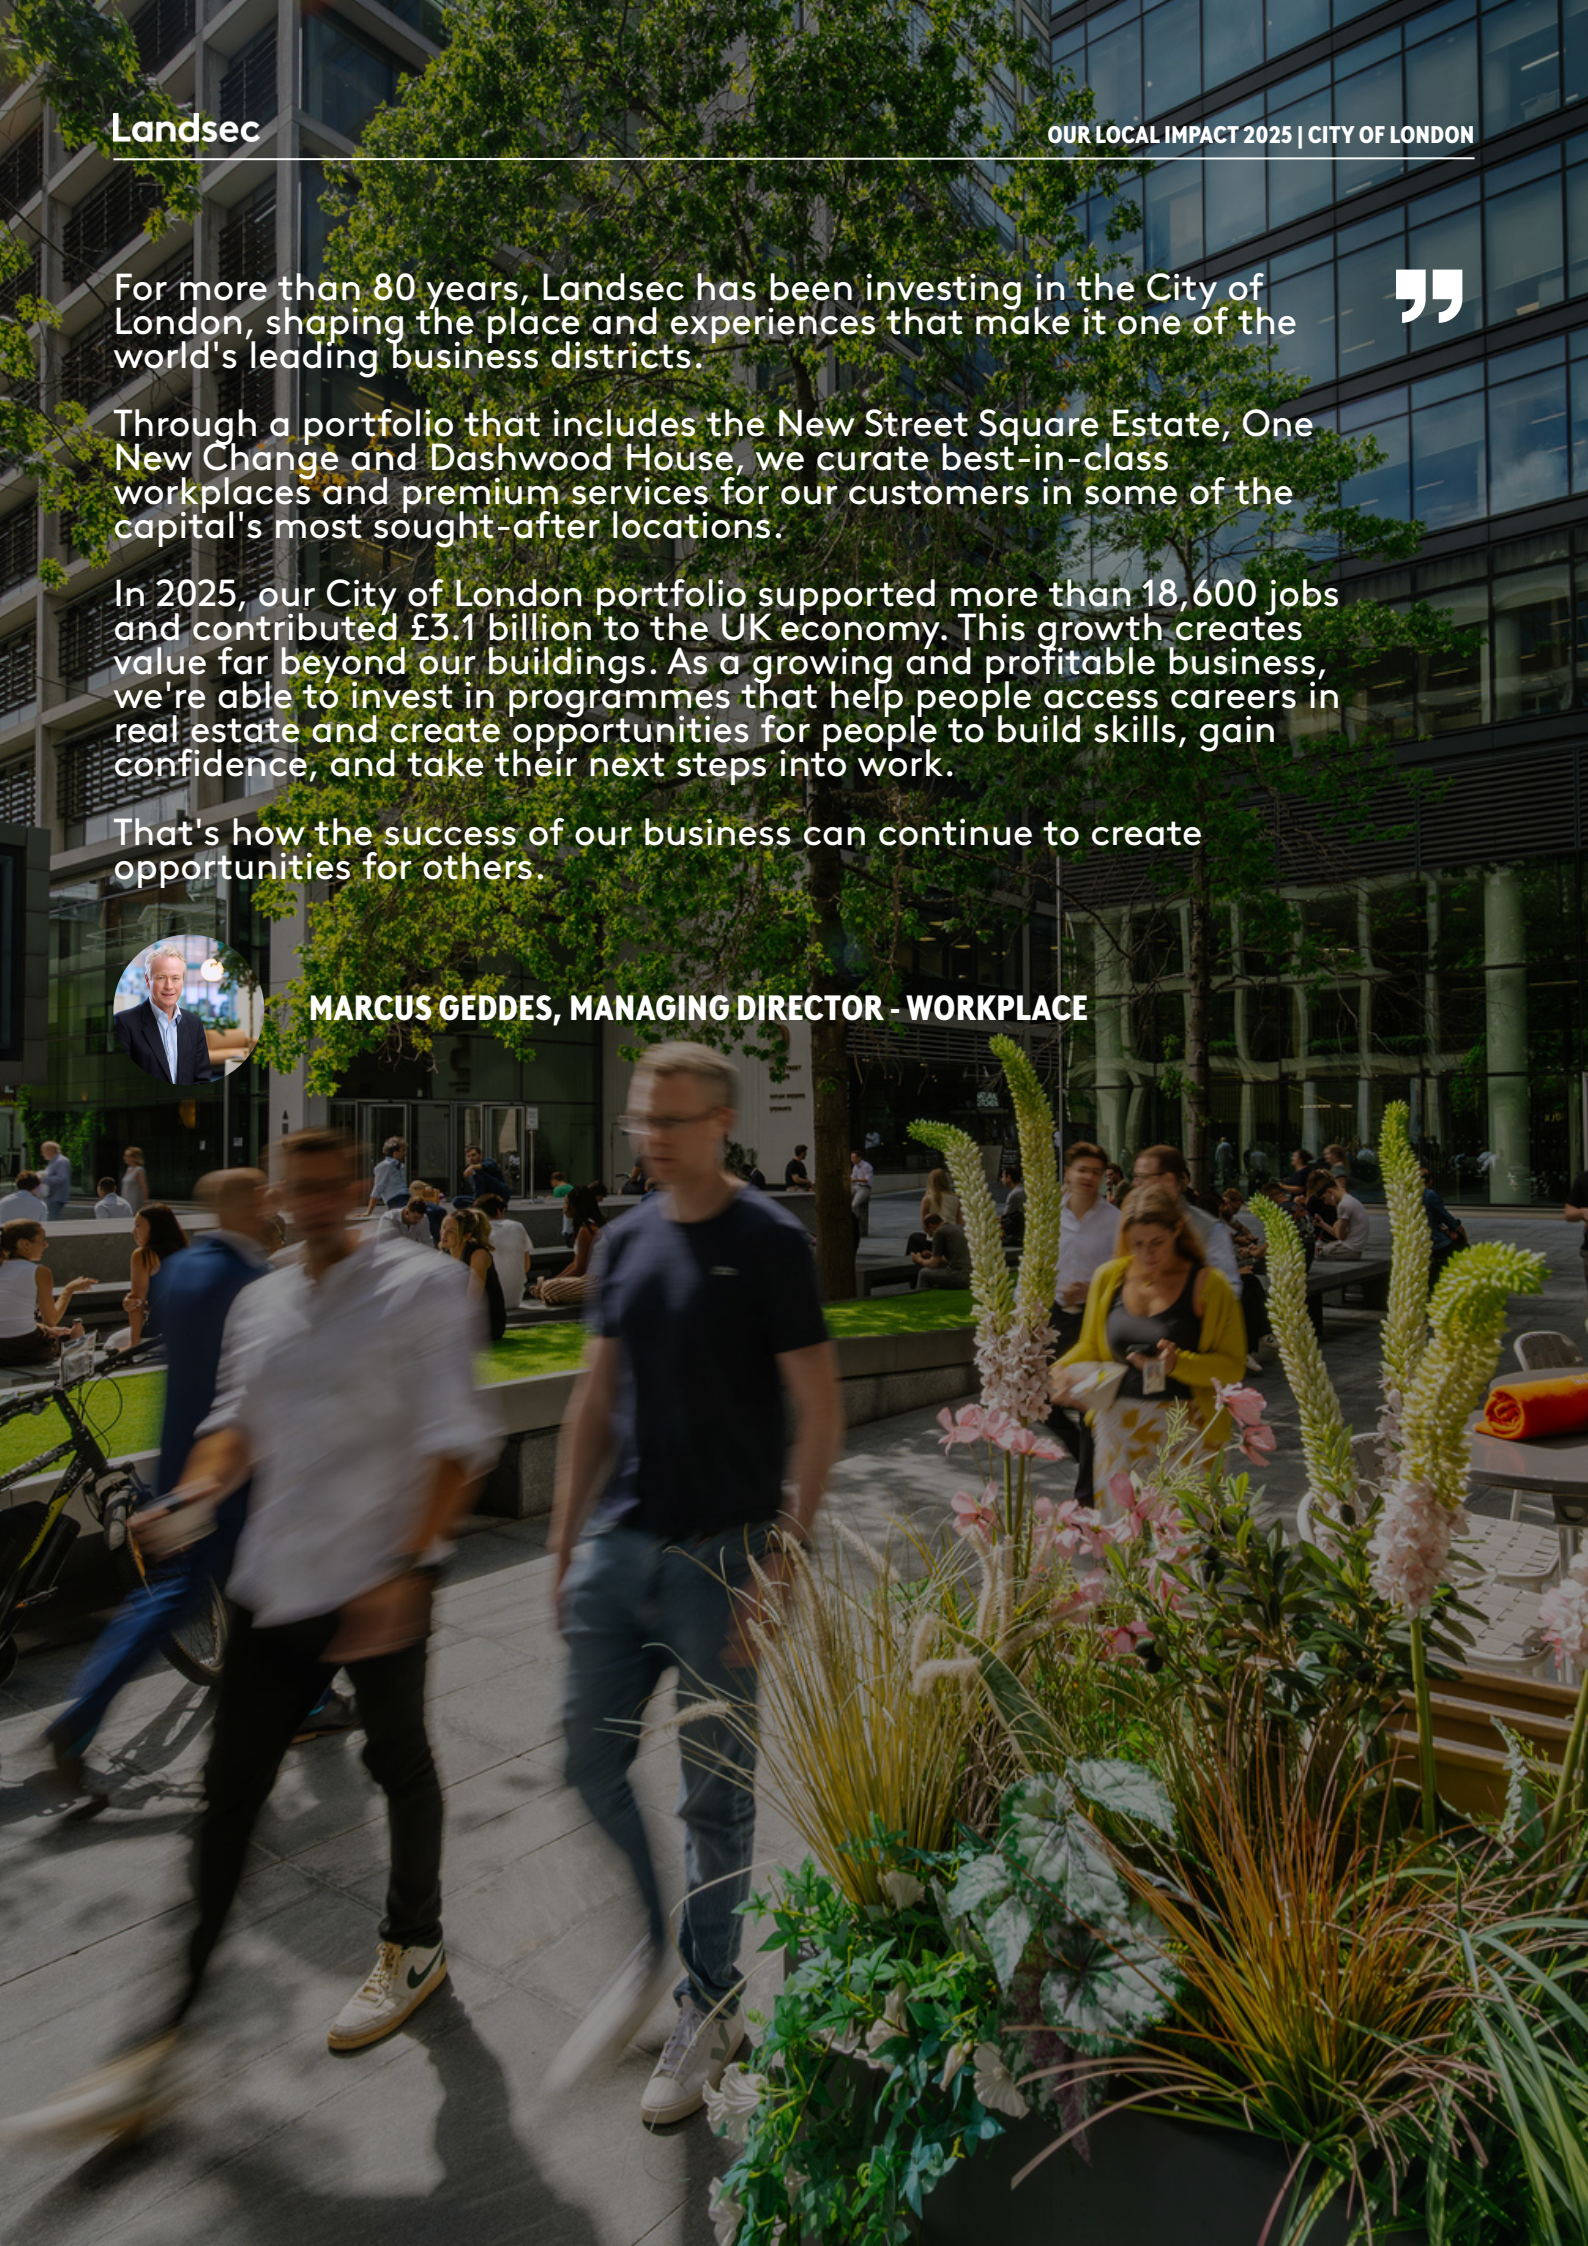

Through a portfolio that includes the New Street Square Estate, One New Change and Dashwood House, we curate best-in-class workplaces and premium services for our customers in some of the capital's most sought-after locations.

In 2025, our City of London portfolio supported more than 18,600 jobs and contributed £3.1 billion to the UK economy. This growth creates value far beyond our buildings. As a growing and profitable business, we're able to invest in programmes that help people access careers in real estate and create opportunities for people to build skills, gain confidence, and take their next steps into work.

That's how the success of our business can continue to create opportunities for others.
